WALKED TO THE ELECTRIC CHAIR WITHOUT A SIGN OF FEAR.

His Last Words Were a Prayer-Death Was Instantaneous with the First Shock-Thorn's Body Will Be Brought Here To-Day and Interred in Calvary Cemetery. Martin Thorn, the German barber who, with Mrs. Augusta Nack, a midwife, was convicted of the murder of William Gieldsensuppe, a Turkish bath rubber, on Nov. 30 last, was put to death in the electric chair at Sing Sing Prison yesterday morning. Thorn met his end as he said he would, calmly and without a sign of fear. That peculiar expression, almost a smile, which he were all through his trial, was on his face as he stepped into the death chamber, and it was still there when the death cap and chin piece were adjusted, shutting all but his mouth from the view of the witnesses. The execution was one of the most successful ever performed in this State. Death was instantaneous, and it was the opinion of all the physicians present that it came even before the body strained at the leather straps which bound it in place, and which told the witnesses that the fatal current

Thorn spent his last few hours in very much the same mood that he had been in for the past week. He had known for a long time that the end would come yesterday morning and he had placidly awaited the fatal hour. The labors of Pather Thomas J. Hauselman, his spiritual adviser, had a marked effect on the murderer. That he was sincere in his professions of religion was not doubted around the prison. Father Hauselman cautioned Thorn a week ago to put no hope in a respite or a possible commutation, but to prepare for the end. Thorn obeyed him. For scarcely a moment during his waking hours was the little German prayer book out of his hands. So moved was he by his new thoughts that he declared that he wished neither respite nor commutation, and said that the visit of his counsel to the Governor to beg for elemency was without his support. He wanted to die, he said, and the sooner the Father Hauselman left Thorn on Sunday night and came down to this city. Thorn read his prayer book and chatted with the death watch until about 11 o'clock and then went to

"I guess it's my last night's sleep," he said to one of the watchers in a low voice. "Well, I'll try to die like a man." Then he went to sleep and slept soundly until about 6 o'clock yesterday morning, when one of the guards woke him. Thorn jumped out of bed with alacrity. 'It's the last day," he said in an undertone.

"Have Father Hauselman come to me as soon as he gets here."
On a stool beside Thorn's cot there was a bundle of clothing. In it was a suit of sombre black, a clean white shirt, a turndown collar, and a white bow necktie. There were also a pair of white socks and a pair of shoes. Thorn knew they were his death clothes and looked at them queerly for a moment. Then he slowly put them on, all but the shoes, which he said he didn't care to wear. He put on a pair of light slippers instead, and then sat on the edge of his cot, took the Greman prayer book from a stool and began to read. At 70 clock the priest, who has devoted all of his time for two weeks to the condemned man, arrived and went to the cell. He went out again at 9:30 o clock, returning at 10, and from that time until Warden Sage came in to summon Thorn to the death chamber the two were in close conversation.

In the meantime the officials and witnesses invited to attend the execution had arrived and were seated in the Warden's office and out on the prison steps. The officials were Warden Esge, Prison Physician R. T. Irvine. State Electrician E. F. Davis and Assistant State Electrician Harry L. Tyler. The witnesses were Henry C. Miner, the theatrical manager; Drs. J. E. Lambard, David Orr Edson, C. F. Orben, W. H. Hutchinson, John N. Bull, Nicholas Kruskai, W. MacEdward, Arthur G. Atwood, F. X. Hasel, E. H. Himrod and fourteen newspaper reporters.

At 11 oclock Warden Sage walked out of the "Have Father Hauselman come to me as soon paper reporters.

At 11 o'clock Warden Sage walked out of the prison office and announced in a low voice that all was ready. The witnesses marched silently to the death chamber and ranged themselves around the wall. The custom of giving the witnesses stools to sit on was abolished for this execution. Across the arms of the death chair a board with eighteen incandescent lights on it was stretched. It was connected with the wire which is attached to the cap in which the electroic is located and through which the flats current is sent.

shake hands with you. Warden, and thank you for the many kind things you have done for me since I have been here."

"It's all right. Thorn," said the Warden.

"It's all right. If you are ready we will go at once."

Tam quite ready," said Thorn.

While this conversation was going on a helper had slipped up alongside of Thorn and with a pair of seissors cut the right leg of his trousers up to the knee. The keeper wanted Thorn to remove his cost, collar and necktie, according to custom, but the man brushed him away.

"Let me keep these ou," he said, and at a sign from the Warden the keeper withdrew.

It was exactly 11:15% o'clock when the Warden appeared in the death chamber. Directly behind him came Thorn, then the two priests. Principal Keeper Connaughton, and four other keepers, who quickly took places on either side of the chair. Thorn was ghastly white. He shuffled rather than waked in, and appeared to be stoop-shouldered. He cast one glance at the withesses and then looked at the chair. Withsit a second's hesitation he walked over to it stoop-shouldered. He cast one glance at the withesses and then looked at the chair. Without a second's hesitation he walked over to it and sat down.

It has always been the custom for the keepers to grab a man by the arms and hurry him into the chair, but Thorn was seated before anybody placed a hand on him. The work of strapping him in and adjusting the electrode was done expeditiously, but to the onlookers it seemed an age. During it all Thorn remained quiet, his eyes fixed on Father Hauselman, who kept talking to him. The head cap, containing the electrode, was the last thing put on, and as it was forced over Thorn's head the man began to mumble.

"Save me, Jesus!" he said over and over again, all the while clutching the small cruciffix which the priest had placed in his hand.

At 11:17 o clock the attendants stepped back. Warden Sage nodded to Electrician Davis, who quickly pushed over a lever, completing the circuit, at the same time signalling to the conviet executioner concealed in the electrical closet. Thorn's body stiffened at once and strained at its bindings. So far as Thorn was concerned it was all over.

The first shock sent into Thorn's body was 1.50 voits, electrifying the body to a degree of ten amperes. This was maintained for five seconds, after which it was reduced to 400 voits, four amperes being indicated on the metro. This force was maintained for fifty-five seconds, after which the current was turned on again. This was maintained but a second, after which the current was turned on the physicians were then invited to step forward and examine the body, which they did.

The one unfortunate part of the execution was the slipping of the electrode which was fastened to Thorn's right leg. This electrode is fastened to the calf of the leg, where the burning is apt to be trivial on account of the muscles. Yesterday it slipped up under the knee and against the fleshy part of the leg. When the current was turned on full the electrode burned in to the depth of nearly an inch.

hed.

It had been intended to give Thorn a second shock after the current had been turned off eutricky, but the engineer through some mistake out off the connection and it was impossible. It didn't matter, however, as the first shock killed the man instantly.

didn't matter, however, as the first shock killed the man instantly.

Thorn's body was taken out of the chair at about 11:30 o'clock, and an hour later the autopsy was performed by Dr. Irvine, Dr. John hie Alliater of Bellevue Hospital, Dr. G. W. Goodwin of the Orthopseid Hospital, Dr. H. T. Brooks of the Fost Graduate Hospital, and several other physicians. The autopsy showed that Thorn was perfectly normal in every way. There was nothing abnormal about the brain, and the body was well nourished and in good condition. Warden Sage was in a quandary for a time after the execution as to what disposition to make of the body. Thorn's brother-la-law, Faul Minker, came to the prison with Undertaker C. Herrlich of 4:85 Fast Eighty-third street, and asked for the body. The Warden was afraid that if it was taken to the city some attempt to exhibit it might be made. He finally decided to allow Minker to take it this morning, but assigned State Detective Jackson to accompany the body to this city, and ordered him not to leave it until it had been buried. The body will arrive at the Grand Central Station at it 20 o'clock, and will be taken to Undertaker lierrich's shop. In the afternoon it will be huried at Calvary Cemetery. The only mourners will be Minker and his little daughter, Emily, The crime for which Thorn was killed was the murder of William Gieldsensuppe, a rubber in the Murray HillTurkish baths. Gleidsepsuppe was lured to a cottage at Woodside, L. L. by Mrs. Augusta Nack, Thorn's accomplice, and shot there by Thorn. The body was there cut up and the rieces wrapped in ollcloth. The legs and upper part of the trunk were found floating in the East River. The lower part of the trunk was found in the woods near the Harlem River. Thorn was tried twice. The first trial came to a close after Mrs. Nack's confession on account of the illness of a juror. The second trial began on Nov. 22, and on Nov. 30 Thorn was found guilty of murder in the first degree. The case was appealed, but the Court of Appeals affirmed the verdiet.

Acrowd of more than a thousand people gathered in front of the undertaking establishment of Herlich Bros. last night owing, to the belief that Thorn's body had arrived. Many in the crowd were women. Many people also sent flowers. One wreath of liles of the valley was fully three feet high. There was no card attached, but early in the evening a hansom cab containing two well dressed young women drove up. The women asked if the wreath had been received, and were much disappointed when told that Thorn's body would not arrive until to-day. They refused to give their names. MAIL SHOT ACROSS THE BRIDGE, Pneumatic Tube System Was Successfully Inaugurated Yesterday Afternoon.

The pneumatic mail tube system con necting the General Post Offices of Man nattan and Brooklyn boroughs, which was completed about two weeks ago, received the final tests yesterday afternoon, and at 4 o'clock the regular transmission of mail to and from the two offices was begun. About seventy-five persons saw the first carrier placed in the tube by Postmaster Wilson f Brooklyn. The carrier contained the cards of the spectators, and at 3:30 o'clock Post-master Wilson pulled the lever, which sent it across the bridge and to the Manhattan office. where it arrived safely.

The carriers have a capacity of from 450 to 500 letters each, and can, it is stated, be run under a headway of ten seconds. The time of transit for a carrier from one terminal to the other is about 2 minutes and 35 seconds. The tubes, which were put in by the New York Mail and Newspaper Transportation Company at a cost of $40,000, are rented to the Government for $14,000 a year, under a three years lease. The employment of the tubes will not do away with the mail wagon system between the two boroughs, the operation of which now costs between five and six thousand dollars a year, and it is estimated that in addition to the rental of the tubes it will cost the Government over $4,000 a year for engineers, fremen and coal to operate them. Only first-class mail matter will be sent through the tubes, and if worked to their full capacity and without hitch or accident they will be able to carry, it is estimated, not more than 20 per cent. of the matter now transmitted by wagon, and possibly only 12 or 15 per cent. transit for a carrier from one terminal to the transmitted by wagon, and possibly only 12 or 15 per cent.

Among those who witnessed the trial yesterday were Howard Gould, Silas B. Dutcher, Harry A. Hanbury, Public Administrator William B. Davenport, S. S. Griest, L. L. Titus, Seth L. Keeney, D. H. Decker, L. H. Jerome, Superintendent of Mails Lyons, Postmaster Wilson, Assistant Postmaster Taylor, John C. Calhoun, John E. Milholland, St. Clair McKelway, Ferdinand W. Peck, Commissioner-General to the Paris Exposition; William Extance, Internal Revenue Collector Moore, Judge Thomas and United States Commissioner Morle.

KLONDIKE OFFICIALS AT ODDS. Major Walsh Resigns and May Ask for an Investigation at Ottawa. TACOMA, Wash., Aug. 1.-The retirement of Major Walsh as Canadian Commissioner in the Yukon country is causing much gossip at Dawson. He will return to Ottawa when Commissioner Ogilvie arrives, and is coming out disgusted. It is known that he and Gold Commissioner Fawcett are at loggerheads. It is said that Walsh does not approve the latter's methods, and will cause an investigation of them on reaching Ottawa.

Returning Klondikers say that many Government officials under Fawcett, including some colicemen, are seeking to enrich themselves above everything else. One says:

"Ask for your mail at the Dawson Post Office and you are told that there is none. office and you are told that there is none. Office and you are told that there is none. Give a policeman $2 and he will get you plenty to the death chamber and ranged themselves around the wall. The custom of giving the witnesses stools to sit on was abolished for this execution. Across the arms of the death chair a board with eighteen incandescent lights on it was stretched. It was connected with the wire which is attached to the cap in which the electroic is located and through which the fatal current is sent.

The current was turned on and the lights flaved up. It was the linal test of the apparatus, and Warden Sage announced that everything was in perfect working order. Then he abdoresed the witnesses, saying:

"I wish to impress upon you, gentlemen, the should necessity of remaining in your present positions until all is over. Do not step forward or approach the chair until you are told to.

Then the Warden stepped out of the little side door. He went to Thorn's cell, but a haif dozen steps from the death chamber, and walking in said.

Thorn, the time hus come."

Thorn was sitting on the edge of his cot talking in a low voice to Father Hauselman and Father St. John of Sing Sing. He jumped up at once and said in a firm voice:

"I am ready, sir, but before I go I want to shake hands with you, Warden, and thank you for the many kind things you have done for me since I have been here."

"It's all right, Thorn," said the Warden.

"I all right, Thorn," said the Warden.

"I all right, Thorn," said the Warden.

"I and right, Thorn," said the Warden.

"I and right, Thorn," said the Warden. Give a policeman $2 and he will get you plenty few pounds of hardtack and bacon.

BEER ARK LICENSES REVOKED. Asbury Park Council Vote to Return the Money Already Paid for Licenses. ASBURY PARK, N. J., Aug. 1 .- At the meeting of the City Council to-night Councilman Appleby said that by charging a license for beer arks the city actually legalized the sale of beer. He said he had learned that the arks paid their license more promptly than others engaged in peddling. He declared that if the city could get money in no other way than by licensing the arks it had better shut down. Mr.

ing the arks it had better shut down. Mr. Appleby insisted that the money which the beer ark peddlers had paid into the city treasury should be returned to them and their liconses cancelled.

thought that the gift of God may be purchased with money." These beer ark fellows are worse than thieves. They do more harm to our city than an army of thieves. I think so little of these people that I have told them that I do not want their patronsage. I say take their money and hurl it back at them and let us tell them how we despise them. Beer ark men are not like honorable merchants who remain in their stores and wait for business. They go into side streets and alleys hunting up their customers."

Every Councilman voted for the motion that the money from the beer ark peddlers be returned.

SHORT SUPPLY OF GRAIN IN EUROPE. Russia Contemplates the Prohibition of Its Export from That Country.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1 .- According to a report received at the State Department from Consul Smith at Moscow, the Russian Government has under consideration a proposition to forbid the exportation of grain from that country, owing exportation of grain from that country, owing to failure of the crops and the small supply on hand. Consul Smith quotes from a lecture delivered recently by a Russian civil engineer, urging that action to avoid distress, in which it was stated that the supply of grain in western Europe was hardly sufficient to last a month. He recommended that, in addition to grain, the exportation of hay and straw should also be prohibited, as in 1891.

BODIES OF BOURGOGNE VICTIMS. The Steamship Aldersgate Saw Twelve o

Them Floating on the Ocean. Lewes, Del., Aug. 1.—The British steamship Aldersgate, Capt. Jones, at the Delaware Breakwater for orders, from London, passed the bodies of two women and ten men on July 27. The bodies of the women were without life preservers and were two miles south of the scene of the Bourgogne catastrophe. The bodies of the men were fourteen miles further south.

New Ferry Between Bergen Beach and Canarsie.

In the County Court of Brooklyn yesterday Judge Hurd granted a license to the Berger Beach and Canarsie Ferry Company to operate a ferry between the two places named. The fare is to be 5 cents, and the ferry will be oper-ated between May and September. The appli-cation was opposed by the Bergen Beach I nunch Company, which has a ferry in opera-tion between the same points.

WIFE USES A HORSEWHIP.

SOUNDLY THRASHES HER HUSBAND AND HIS BLONDE COMPANION.

An Exciting Episode on the Promenade at Manhattan Beach on Sunday Night-Husband Meekly Followed His Indig-nant Wife Home After the Thrashing. A well-dressed man about 40 years old, his wife, and a blonde young woman, by far the youngest of the three, were the central figures in a horsewhimping on Sunday night on the promenade at Manhattan Beach, between the Manhattan Beach Hotel and the Oriental Hotel. The man, who is said to be a New Yorker, rrived at the beach about 6 o'clock accompanied by the young woman. The disparity in their ages, combined with other things, st-tracted considerable attention from the other visitors to the beach. The pair had an exspicuous, and then started for a walk on the promenade. About 8 o'clock the wife of the New Yorker arrived on the scene. Those among the throng that knew her followed at a distance to see what would follow should she meet her husband and his companion. They were well repaid for their trouble, when madame came face face with her liege lord and his fair friend about midway between the two hotels. The girl gave a little scream and tried to run away. The man seemed too surprised to move Madame took matters into her own hands, and away. The man seemed too surprised to move.

Madame took matters into her own hands, and, drawing a horsewhip from the folds of her gown, she began laying it vigorously upon the shoulders and head of the younger woman.

You hussy," shouted madame. "I'll fix you (whack). You will go (whack) with married men (whack), will you? (Whack, whack). I'll tench (whack) you a lesson (whack, whack, whack) that you won't soon forget."

The girl had tried to ward off the blows with but poor success. Through the light material of her kown rad welts could be seen across her shoulders. The husband finally tried to defend the woman he had been escorting. The wife thereupon turned on him and gave him a good lashing, both with her whip and her tongue.
Finally the Pinkerton police who patrol the walk ran up and stopped the row.

All three were hustled down to the station and put aboard the first train to Long Island City. The young woman discreetly fied into another car, and when the husband tried to follow her madame obstructed the passageway.

"I don't want another seene," said she, significantly, "but you'll be sorry if you attempt to follow that hussy into the other car. You had better sit down and be good."

The husband meekly obeyed, and he passed an uncomfortable time during the entire journey, as he was the cynosure of all eyes. At Long Island City madame and monsieur got into a closed cab and the young woman got into another. Both cabs crossed the river on the same ferryboat, but there were no more demonstrations on madame's part.

James L. Sackett of 322 East Twenty-third street yesterday brought to the East Twenty econd street police station a bundle containing a coat, vest, blue jumper, and soft felt hat, which he found on the pier at the foot of East Twenty-second street. In one of the pockets of the coat was a card of the New York Eye and Ear Infirmary bearing the name William Henderson. The card was numbered 5,193.

Later in the day the body of a man about 25 years old was found at the foot of East Twentylrst street. The man was about 5 feet 7 inches tall, weighed 175 pounds and had black nair and mustache. The body was naked and the police think it is that of the man whose clothes were found on the pier. It is thought that the man either committed suicide or was frowned while bathing.

Card 5,193 of the Eye and Ear Infirmary was ssued to a German calling himself William Henderson, on July 5. He was an outdoor patient, and said he lived at 219 West Twentyfirst street. Mrs. Helen L. Fennell of 219 West Twenty-first street went to the Morgue last night and looked at the body. She thought it might have been some one employed by her but she was unable to recognize the body.
Private William Henderson of Company D, Twelfth New York Volunteers, deserted his regiment at the camp at Chickamauga two weeks ago. He sent a note to W. C. T. U. women at Chattanooga saying that he had been accidentally shot on Saturday while painting targets at the rifle range. This was published yesterday as a fact by newspapers all over the country, coupled with the information that Henderson was the only support of his mother, who was separated from her husband, and livel at 343 West Nineteenth street.
The coincidence of Henderson's absence from his regiment with the finding in the East River of the body of a man of presumably the same name was interesting enough to warrant investigation. At 343 West Nineteenth street, Robert Henderson, the oldest brother of the family now at home, described his brother William as thin, sparely built and as having very light, almost white hair. Mr. Henderson also said that his brother's chest was tattooed all over with dragons, ships and wild beasts. The body at the Morgue bears no tattoo marks. first street. Mrs. Helen L. Fennell of 219 West Conference with the President. WASHINGTON Aug. 1 -President Warner Miller of the Nicaragua Canal Company and Sena- them to-day and left town. An examination of tor Morgan of Alabama, author of the bill for the construction of the Nicaragua Canal under the guarantee and supervision of the Government, had a short conference to-day with President McKinley on the subject. They received satisfactory assurances of the President's posiion and his belief that the war had demonstrated that possession of the canal was indispensable. It is probable that the President's next measage to Congress will contain a recom-next message to Congress will contain a recommendation for its completion on the lines of Mr. Morgan's bill or something of a like character. After the conference Mr. Miller spoke very enthusiastically of the project.

"The next session of Congress," he said, "will undoubtedly provide for completing the canal and its acquirement as the property of the United States. The canal has always been necessary to this country, but it is imperative now. There is not much doubt as to what action will be taken by Congress. The effect of the war on the project is a complete demonstration of its significance to us. Our new and valuable interests in the Pacific will no doubt add to the pressure for action. The canal can be completed in five years and put into operation, making the link between the Atlantic and Pacific."

Senator Morgan is also confident that Congress will take prompt action at its next session. The Senator had a final talk with the President regarding the work of the Hawaiian Commission. He leaves here on Wednesday to join the other members in San Francisco, from which port they will sail for Honoiulu on Aug. 10. Hawaii now has as good government, said the Senator, as any of the States of the Union, and excellent men are administering it.

SCRAMBLING IN CHINA.

British Anxiety Over the Railroad Enter prises of Other Powers.

Ruscial Cable Despatch to Tau Sun, LONDON, Aug. 1.-English correspondents in China of commercial Interests here and the newspapers have been hammering the Government for weeks with reference to the strenuous efforts that are being made by Russia and other powers to establish exclusive control of the network of railroads throughout China. The Earl of Kimberley appealed to Lord Salisbury in the House of Lords last evening to make a clear statement of the steps he proposed to safeguard British interests in the railroads in the provinces bordering on the Yangtse-Kiang. He said that if Great Britain did not act energetically she would soon discover that she was excluded from a fair share in the enterprises.

Lord Salisbury admitted that it was the Gov. ernment's duty to protect as far as possible and assist British enterprise in China, but said it pensive dinner, in which champagne was conwas not its duty to trace plans for railroads in foreign countries or to construct them or find the capital for their building. The government had been urged by certain commercial interests to insist on a concession for a railroad from Burmah to the Yangtse-Klang, with specified branches. Parliament to guarantee the capital. Such a course would involve a reversal of the traditional British policy that would be quite unjustified. The British Minister to China would, however, do all that was possible to obtain justice and equal treatment for British capitalists seeking concessions. About a fortnight ago the Government had instructed the Minister to inform the Chinese Government that Great Britain would support it in resisting any power committing an act of aggression on China in consequence of her granting permission to any British subject to build a railroad or other public work. The newspapers comment in an unsatisfied manner on Lord Salisbury's utterances. The Times says it regrets that his reply was not of a nature to inspire renewed confidence in the Chinese policy of the Government.

PERSIA'S TWO FRIENDS.

ENGLAND AT WEL HAL WEL A Demonstration to Awe the Chinese-Plans to Build New Forts. TACOMA, Wash., Aug. 1.-Oriental advices received to-day say that on July 18 British warships made an important demonstration on the mainland at Wei Hai Wei, in the territory recently acquired by Great Britain on lease from China, following its evacuation by the Japanese forces after the payment of the balance of the Chinese war indemnity.

For some time several British war vessels have been anchored in the bay in front of Wei Hai Wei. On the date named 1,000 British them. Headed by a brass band of the cruiser Centurion, they spent the day in marching Centurion, they spent the day in marching through Wei Hai Wei and the surrounding villages, making an imposing sight. Inquiry developed that the object of this demonstration was to quell the natives and so overawe them that later, when buildings are being pulled down, there will be no necessity to use violence to restrain the Chinese mobs.

Thousands of villagers, led by their head men, assembled, and several villages sent out representatives to pledge their submission and prevent the attack which was feared. Some of the villagers were found praying to the great dragon and their gods to keep the British from molesting their homes or cemeteries. The weather was exceptionally hot, making the manœuvres difficult for both officers and men. Several men fell out of the ranks through heat prostration.

Several men fell out of the ranks through neat prostration.

Surveys just made at Wei Hai Wei show that the harbor has a greater expanse of deep water than was expected. The fortifications erected there by the Chinese have been found weaker than was supposed. According to news received at Shanghai Col. J. N. Lowis, one of the leading English authorities on fortifications, has been ordered to leave England at once for Wei Hai Wei. He will be accommanied by two Captains of Engineers and half a dozen surveyors from the Ordnance Service Office at Southampton. On their arrival at Wei Hai Wei many buildings will be torn down to permit the erection of great new forts.

All the Employees Paid Off-An Examination of the Plant to Be Made. EASTPORT, Me., Aug. 1.-The Electr Marine Salts Company's works at North Lubec are closed. Those of the employees who were not paid on Saturday received the amount due the so-called electrical machine which, it was said, extracted gold and silver was made by the men in charge. The entire inside was gone. Two wires were found leading into the box. Allston Cushing of St. John, N. B., contractor for 8,000,000 feet of logs, says the company owes him between $15,000 and $20,000.

He says he is not doubtful about getting paid in full by the company, which is solvent. "There is no cause for alarm," says Cushing, as there is sufficient money in the treasury to meet my bill. I have landed 5,000,000 feet of logs near Plant No. 2, having landed 2,000 of logs near Plant No. 2, having landed 2,000 pieces on Friday."

A committee of the stockholders and perhaps President Ryan are expected from Boston tomorrow. They will make a thorough investigation of Plant No. 1 to see if the gold factory is a fake. The machines will be set at work to see what the result will be. It is reported here to-day by contractors that an examination of Plant No. 1 by A. N. Pierson, manager of construction, was encouraging, gold being found. He will continue to run the plant this week until the report of the investigators is made.

R. D. Shanahan of Portland, the head contractor of the new plant, says his loss will be $12,000. He was instructed to suspend work, to wait for the coming committee, which is to report this week. It is supposed generally that the former waterbman of Plant No. 1 knows that the diver, Fisher, "salted" the accumulators. The first indication of alleged wrong is thought to have been given out by Former Bookkeeper Firman, who was discharged and who soon left for England, followed by Jernegan. Jernegan left many small bills unpaid among Eastport merchants. The residents are waiting eagerly for the investigating committee, due to-morrow.

OLD MISER RYAN DEAD.

Disreputable Bowery Character Who Kept Nine Bank Books About Him.

A dirty old man, hollow-cheeked and feeble, was helped into the Oak street station on Wednesday by Policeman Fox. He had been taken sick at Roosevelt and Front streets. He said he was Edward Ryan, 78 years old, and that he lived at the Glenmore House, 3 Chatham square. His vest was closed over a soiled shirt by a single button fastened by a piece of coarse wrapping twine. In the inside vest pocket, wrapping twine. In the inside vest pocket, wrapped in a dirty and torn newspaper, were nine bank books, showing deposits for more than $8,000.

The old mancried when the books were taken from him. They were returned to him, and he kissed them, patied them and rubbed his cheeks against them. He thanked the police in a broken voice for returning them. He was then taken to Bellevue Hospital, and died there yesterday of old age and lack of proper nourishment.

Ryan was well known by sight to frequenters of the Bowery. He lived apart from them. Of his past nothing is known by the police. He never had been arrested for vagrancy or for begging. Sometimes he was sociable, and bought a drink for a comrade. Commonly, however, he kept clear of everybody. His money is held for his relatives by the Public Administrator.

Rector Howell Transferred to New York. MONTICELLO, N. Y., Aug. 1.-The Rev. Mr. Howell, the Episcopal clergyman who has figured in the courts at intervals for the past six months, was transferred from Monticello yesmonths, was transferred from Montherio yea-terday by Bishop Potter, and will go to New York city. Last April Mr. Howell was arrested upon a charge of assault made by his wife, and was sentenced to three days in jail, which he served. Mrs. Howell then brought suit against Mrs. Jennie Green, a member of Mr. Howell's congregation, for $75,000. A short time after she brought suit against her husband, and ob-tained $10 a week alimony and counsel fees.

WM. ROCKEFELLER'S TAXES.

HIS ASSESSMENT OF $9,500,000 IN-CREASED BY $1,500.

Referee, on His Appeal to Law, Had Reduced It to $353,775-His Report Being Held Up, the Assessors Added the Cost of New Greenhouses to Their Valuation. TARRYTOWN, Aug. 1.-The assessors of the towns of Greenburg and Mount Pleasant filed to-day their assessment roll for 1868, despite the proceedings instituted by William Rockefeller to forestall it so far as he is concerned. Referee Willis E. Hayradt of Poughkeepsie handed down a week ago Friday a decision placing the value of William Rockefeller's propperty in Mount Pleasant at $353,775. It was assessed for $2,500,000. His decision was to have come up on Saturday before Justice Barnard at Poughkeepsie for confirmation. Frank V. Millard, counsel for the town, declared that, as he had been ill, he had not had time to prepare an argument in the case, and asked for an adjournment. This the attorneys for Mr. Rockefeller strongly objected to. Justice Bar-nard overruled their objections and granted an adjournment until Friday next.

This left the way clear for the assessors to go ahead and assess William Rockefeller's property regardless of the referee's findings. This they did. His property is assessed the same as last year, excepting that $1,500 has been added for some new greenhouses he has erected, and he is assessed for 184 acres in the town of Ossining. This is done in compliance with a decision rendered by Justice Dykman in the Ellot F. Shepard case, in which the Judge found that property should be assessed in the town in which the residence is situated. John D. Rockefeller's assessment remains the same as last year.

D. Rockefeller's assessment remains the same as last year.

A peculiar thing about the roll this year is that despite the fact that the Rockefellers own nearly a quarter of all the property in the town, their name does not appear on the roll once. All property is assessed to the occupants. John D. and William Rockefeller both contend that are propagationts, so escape personal tax-John D. and William Rockefeller both contend they are non-residents, so escape personal taxation. The Shepard estate is assessed at $107,-817, and Robert Bonner at $28,000.

In Greenburg, the richest town in the country, the Goulds' assessment remains the same as last year, as follows: Helen M. and Edwin Gould, real, $511,500; Howard Gould, personal, $250,000; Helen M. Gould, personal, $250,000; Frank J. Gould, personal, $250,000; estate of J. Gould, personal, $1,000,000. The Goulds are making no protest. Other large assessments are:

UNLOADING THE TEXAS. She Will Go Into Dry Dock This Morning

for a Much-Needed Cleaning. The work of unloading the battleship Texas at the navy yard preparatory to her going into dry dock was begun yesterday, and the crew worked hard in getting the coal, ammunition, and heavy stores ashore. About 300 tons of coal had to be removed. The men carried this bluejackets were landed. They carried rifles to the dock in bags. The ammunition had to with bayonets fixed and had two field guns with vised the work and was assisted by Navigator

> There were a number of visitors to the yard yesterday, and they all went directly to the Cob pock to see the battleship that was so prominent in the destruction of Cervera's fleet. Among those who called were the Rev. Dr. D. H. Blackburn of the Church of the Strangers in this city and E. C. Gilbert of the Christian Endeavorers of California. They praised Capt. Philip for the good work he and his crew had done, and compilmented him on his Christian remarks after the battle.
> The hull has not been scraped since Dec. 23, 1897, and the naval authorities believed that it was high time this work was done. It is the custom to have a battleship's hull scraped once every six months.
> Navigator Heller is of the opinion that the Texas will go into dry dock this morning. He did not know when she would be in condition to leave the yard. He said she might remain there for a month. The members of the crew are anxious to get the work of unloading the vessel completed as soon as possible so as to get shore leave, and Capt. Philip is just as anxious to allow his men a little freedom. Dock to see the battleship that was so promi-

The flagship Eifrida and the Free Lance, Aileen, Huntress, and Restless assembled in Cold Spring Harbor on Sunday morning. On the way

Harbor on Sunday morning. On the way there the men had practice in signalling, and on Sunday afternoon the flotilla proceeded to Smithtown Bay.

From there it went to Fisher's Island, where it will be joined by the monitor Jason. To-day or to-morrow it will proceed to Block Island for target practice. From thence the flotilla will go to Gardiner's Bay for scout and torpedo practice, landing drills, signal exercises with searchlights, lanterns, and torches, and in working the naval and international code. Practice in coast navigation, taking observations, and in local pilotage will be a part of each day's routine. The monitor now off Tompkinsville will also proceed to sea this week for target practice. mpkinsville will also sek for target practice.

WILLIAM W. WASSA'S CRIME. rrested Here for Killing His Former Wife's

Lover in Chicago. Detective Sergeaut J. F. Early, who came on from Chicago yesterday to identify William W. Wassa, who is wanted in that city for murder, says that five years ago Wassa married a woman named Nellie Wilson, who was then travelling about the country as one of the 'Seven Sutherland Sisters." According to Early, Wassa loved the woman deeply. All went well until they visited Chicago and his wife be-came acquainted with F. H. Ruschhaupt, a druggist at 972 Thirty-first street. Wassa says that his wife left him and ran away with the ruggist. The husband procured a divorce and started

The husband procured a divorce and started in pursuit of the woman. For four years he followed her through all the cities of the West and South. She returned to Chicago with the druggist and they settled down as man and wife. Wassa then got a revolver, and on May 14 walked into Ruschhaupt's drug store and began shooting at the woman. Ruschhaupt attempted to interfere, and Wassa turned and shot him twice, one shot passing through the head and one through the heart.

Wassa then made his escape and came to this city. He was arrested on Friday night at the foot of West Ninety-seventh street by Detectives Fay and Strausky of the Central Office. When arraigned before Magistrate Flammer at the Centre Street Court yesterday, Wassa said: "I have no doubt I am the man who is wanted, and I am perfectly willing to go. I did the shooting, and I am glad of it." He was remanded to await the arrival of requisition papers.
